So much love!

Wow! Your appreciations this week were phenomenal! I can really tell that you are inspired and excited by what your friends contribute to the newsletter. I hope you enjoy them. Keep them coming next week!

I decided on this photo of the turtles, from a walk Noah, Rowen, Melanie, and Brad took, because it makes me think of family and friends (like all of you!) hanging out together on a log. And, it made me think of the walks many of us are taking these days and how on those walks we get to notice the nature, flowers, mountains, and animals around us and maybe something about how our bodies are strong or how they move. What are you noticing these days?

Jules had the idea to put photos of us as we are in stay-at-home, so you will see photos of us keeping our distance and being online so we stay safe. Share your photos for next week!

Did you all know I have a baby in my belly? Guess what? This week, my baby is as big as a rutabaga and might be starting to grow hair! I can feel him wiggling around inside. Sometimes he pokes me, too. Can you believe all of us (your parents included!) were ever that small and in someone's belly? Love, Liddy

Spring is fantastic.
It's when all the animals wake up.
Especially butterflies.
Bees pollenate. Bears wake up.
People go out to play.
